

EDUCATION OUTREACH PROGRAM

Integrating curriculum and industry needs for Cultural Resource Management

The Cultural Resource Management (CRM) industry is expected to see sustained growth over the next decade. This growth will require close collaboration with educational institutions to meet the demand for appropriately-trained archaeologists, architectural historians, and paleontologists.

The Chronicle Heritage Education Outreach Program seeks to align academic training and CRM industry needs by providing faculty with a resource for integrating CRM into their curricula and by providing students with exposure to the types of careers available in CRM.

THE EDUCATION OUTREACH PROGRAM OFFERS:

- Critical discussions about integrating curriculum and industry needs
- Presentations on the CRM industry and/or local projects
- Course lectures on aspects of CRM academic faculty may have less experience with such as permitting processes, project budgeting, etc.
- Career fair/event booths
- Paid internships to develop CRM industry skills for undergraduates, graduate students, and recent graduates
- Summer/winter employment opportunities for students on local projects
